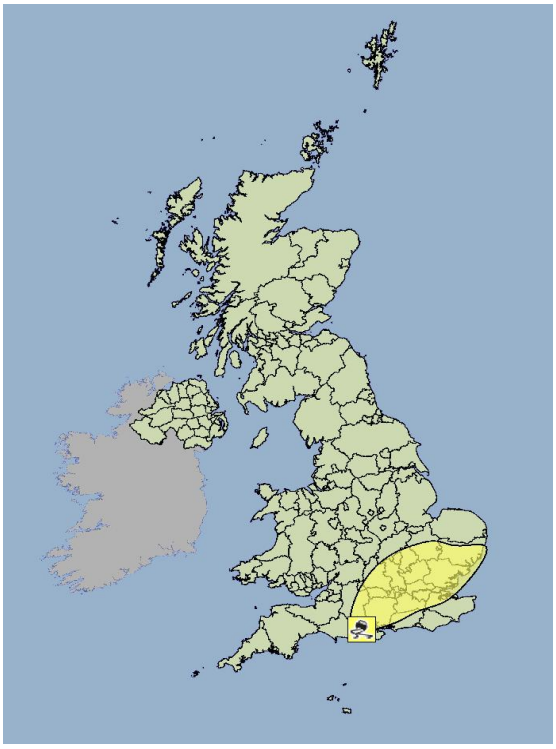
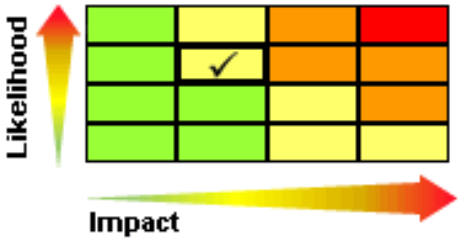
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
With cold conditions and some snow lying over parts of England, as well as further rain pushing in from the southeast during the second half of the night, icy stretches are expected to form on untreated surfaces. At the same time some snow may fall over parts of Kent, Sussex, Surrey and Hampshire.

This is only a low impact warning with impacts much less widespread and less significant than across parts of England and Wales on Sunday.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Ice

Valid from 04:00 on Mon, 11th Dec 2017 until 11:00 on Mon, 11th Dec 2017

Ice is expected to form on some surfaces Sunday night and into Monday morning.

Some injuries are possible from slips and falls on icy surfaces and there will probably be some icy patches on untreated roads and cycle paths.

On Monday morning some snow may fall over parts of Kent, Sussex, Surrey and Hampshire. Some accumulations of 2-5 cm are possible above ~ 100 m but at lower levels no accumulations are expected, instead a mixture of rain and sleet is most likely.

Some roads and railways are likely to be affected with longer and more difficult journeys.
